

SenSage and Acusell Deliver Enterprise Security Analytics and Log Management Solutions to European Market

SAN FRANCISCO, CA – August 30, 2006 – SenSage, Inc., the leading provider of enterprise security analytics, today announced a distribution agreement with Acusell, a London-based provider of full lifecycle technology solutions including business development delivery and support services.

Through this relationship, Acusell and SenSage will jointly address the growing need for solutions that fortify European IT organizations' compliance with various regulatory and industry risk reduction and data privacy guidelines. These guidelines require organizations to monitor and act upon business and security controls that are represented within system event log data. SenSage's award-winning security analytics solutions enable organizations to manage, retain and act upon enormous volumes of event log data.

"We are committed to helping organizations manage the daunting tasks and costs associated with regulatory compliance and information security," said Dan Barahona, vice president of emerging markets for SenSage, Inc. "Acusell has a proven track record of assisting enterprises tackle complex networking and business challenges. We look forward to working with Acusell to satisfy demand for our solutions within Europe."

United States and European regulatory mandates, such as Sarbanes-Oxley (SOX), Basel II and the European Union (EU) Data Retention Directive, have accelerated event data management and security assessment obligations. This requires the lifecycle management of event data that often spans several years and billions of records within large enterprises. SenSage's scalable event log management solutions automate the collection, monitoring, reporting and search against Terabytes and years' worth of network, system, security and application event data.

"We see a growing demand from customers for innovative solutions that help them cope with log management requisites associated with regulatory compliance, fraud and security exposures," said Glenn Hardy, managing director of Acusell. "We're excited to bring SenSage's best-of-breed enterprise security analytics to our customers; allowing them to overcome performance, scale and long-term retention issues that impact compliance and risk reduction."

Acusell has introduced cutting-edge information technology products and services to the European market. Acusell's expertise lies in its wealth of knowledge of all aspects of creating, delivering and supporting effective and profitable multi-country distribution channels. The company distributes database, reporting, storage and security solutions through specialized European resellers serving a variety of marketing segments.
